The National Trust Lease

Our tenancy is currently being registered with the Land Registry. If there is any further news it will be reported at the AGM.

The Water System at High House

Allerdale District Council carried out a Risk Assessment on our water supply about one year ago and have recently produced a schedule of required improvements (although the water itself meets current health standards). Under the terms of the new lease much of the required work is now the responsibility of the landlord. The National Trust has been notified and the committee has taken the opportunity to request that the tangle of pipes and tanks on the fellside be simplified, perhaps by combining the farm and High House intake. Watch this space.

The KFF Monthly Draw.

The latest winners are:

September - Pam Heseltine

October - Phil Blamire

November - Laura Walsh

December - Laura Walsh. Again - comments to the organiser please, not the editor!

Rod Muncey's Memorial

The new picnic table has been ordered and a memorial plaque incorporating Angie Mitchell's design (right) will be added when the table is delivered and erected.

The A.G.M. 2019

Changes to the Constitution and Club Rules

There are no changes proposed by the committee.

Election of officers

All the current officers of the club (President and vice-presidents, Trustees and members of the Committee) are willing to serve for another year and so the committee is nominating all for re-election. If any member wishes to propose alternatives for any post they may do so but only with the prior agreement of that person. Remember also that names need to be submitted to the committee before its meeting on Tuesday 8th January.

Away Meet at Rhyd Ddu, including Midweek Walk No. 102

Eight members and friends stayed two (or three) nights at the Oread hut in Rhyd Ddu. Some enjoyed short walks on hills in the Clwydian range on the way there on Tuesday.

The weather on Wednesday was forecast to improve after a cloudy start and we agreed a Midweek Walk that would include some scrambling on Clogwyn Du'r Arddu's Eastern Terrace if conditions were right. We crossed the disused quarries and the Snowdon Ranger track to traverse Moel Cynghorion to Bwlch Cwm Brwynog. The cloud hadn't lifted and the rock felt greasy so the scramble was left for another day. We climbed back into the clag on the Snowdon Ranger track to the summit, thronged with tourists in gleaming white trainers, and so back by the Rhyd Ddu track - when the promised blue skies finally appeared. We finished the day with a meal in front of the log fire in the Cwellyn Arms.

Thursday was a fine sunny day, and we all enjoyed our different hills: Norman and Jenny stayed on for an extra night and walked the ridge from Moel Cynghorion to Moel Eilio. Jan and Kevin drove to Ogwen for a walk on the Glyderai, Mick and Clare ticked off the Marilyn Hope Mountain near Wrexham, whilst Ruth and Hugh walked up Yr Eifl on the Lleyn Peninsula. Hugh says: "A very enjoyable three days walking: more please!"

Weekend 9th to 11th November 2018

High House - Remembrance Sunday.

Ten Fellfarers braved the poor weather to attend the ceremony on Castle Crag and our president walked to Great Gable for the traditional Fell and Rock ceremony. He reports: "I went on a last minute whim: I'm glad I did as it was quite moving although they only held a two minutes silence. If anything else was planned it would have been impossible with the wind and rain and the size of the crowd - it could have been three to four thousand at a guess. The announcement of the silence had to be passed back in the crowd by word of mouth. The silence was followed by a round of applause, something I've not come across before, but I suppose I'm a bit behind the times. The big minus was queuing, fifty minutes from Windy Gap to the summit, and then an hour from the summit back to Windy Gap."

Wednesday 21st November 2018

Midweek Walk No. 103 Elterwater and Lingmoor.

The President led the Midweekers, thirteen in all, through the Elterwater quarries and up through Baysbrown Wood to the summit ridge of Lingmoor. The higher fells, lightly dusted with new snow, were obscured by cloud for much of the time, with just enough light coming through to produce an atmospheric golden haze. A cool breeze kept us from lingering long over our picnic lunch. We descended by the Side Pike ridge, through Fat Man's Agony and back by the Cumbria Way path through Great Langdale. Passing Wall End Farm provoked recollections of stories about the famous barn there, the accommodation used by impecunious climbers in the 1950s (Hugh has now put a small feature article on the barn in the Gallery section of the website). A fine winter outing, thanks to Roger.

Midweek Walk No. 104 and Christmas Lunch Meet

Always the shortest walk of the year, this one, because it has to end by lunchtime. This year twenty one met at the Station Inn, Oxenholme to walk around and over the Helm. At the small tarn on the Underhelm side we were beset by the friendly, frisky fell ponies. Eventually they galloped off, presumably disgusted at not being given food, and we were able to resume our descent to the thin track which skirts the base of the Castlesteads end of the hill, thence up to the summit and so back along the ridge to our starting point. We were joined by more members and twenty five of us sat down to a jolly lunch - traditional Christmas pub fare of pizza, burgers and the like.

Social Evening at Burgundy's

Despite the wrong address being given in the last newsletter, seventeen members managed to find the venue - Burgundy's on Lowther Street. The Social Secretary sends apologies to those who spent the evening wandering up and down Finkle Street with puzzled expressions on their faces. The lucky ones gathered in the upstairs area of the wine bar and the circle of chairs increased as numbers swelled until we seemed in danger of filling the place. There was, of course, much banter and many friendly insults exchanged. I believe there might even have been some snatches of intelligent conversation at times but I probably misheard. The evening passed in a cheery fashion and we were all rather disappointed when the barman called "Time". It was only 10 o'clock. Modern life eh?

Happy New Year to all Fellfarers!
